A Temporary 'Bipartisan Moment'

Tax compromise sets the stage once more for partisan standoffs

Washington

In the year-end tax debate of 2010, President Obama got the economic stimulus he sought while Democrats in Congress settled for picking a political fight.

Far more quietly, Republicans pocketed a two-year extension of George W. Bush-era tax cuts at all income levels and a sweetened estate tax to go with it, without having to swallow billions in public works spending that would have inflamed their tea party supporters.

By the time Obama had signed the bill on Friday, he and Rep. Eric Cantor, the conservative Virginian in line to become House majority leader, could have read entire sections of each other's speeches.

It was, as Florida Republican Rep. Ginny Brown-Waite said in the House, "a bipartisan moment of clarity."

It won't last. Republicans will be in a position to pay less deference to the Democrats in Congress beginning in January, when the GOP takes control of the House and adds seats in the Senate.

But the alignment of political forces that led to the tax bill could reoccur before the 2012 elections if the President Obama succeeded Friday in signing the tax bill he negotiated with the GOP.

Meanwhile ....

The Senate's top Republican, Mitch McConnell of Kentucky, said Sunday on CNN's "State of the Union" that he and Majority Leader Harry Reid, D-Nev., have agreed on a spending measure to keep the government running through March. Passing the bill — known as a "continuing resolution" — would prevent a government shutdown. The budget year began Oct. 1, but Congress hasn't passed any of its annual spending bills. (AP) president and Republicans leaders decide it's in their mutual interest to rein in federal deficits.

For now, the compromise underscored the change in government the voters decreed at midterm elections on Nov. 2.

Democrats are already focused on the 2012 elections, and their principal objective was to attack Republicans. In the short term, they lashed out at Obama also, and wound up far from united.

The tax bill, which included extended unemployment benefits and a one-year cut in Social Security taxes, drew opposition in the end from 112 Democrats in the House and 14 in the Senate. Only 36 Republicans in the House and five in the Senate spurned the Obama-GOP deal.

Still, Democratic unhappiness in the Senate was mild compared with that in the House, where the party's grip on power is measured in mere days. Democrats had pledged to keep the bill from the House floor unless it was changed. They were allowed a vote to remove the estate tax provision they opposed, but failed.

One final maneuver for the Democrats — to reject the bill and pass one without any tax cuts for the wealthy — would have thrown the issue back to the Senate. It was viewed as too politically risky a few days before taxes were scheduled to rise on millions. DAVID ESPO (AP)

Shoppers Swarm Stores as Holiday Push Nears End

New York

Shoppers came out in droves on the last weekend before Christmas, tackling their gift lists and driving traffic up at malls across the country.

“People are a little panicked,” said Dan Jasper, public relations director at the Mall of America in Bloomington, Minn. “I’m hearing them say ‘We’ve gotta get this done,’ and that doesn’t usually show up until the 22nd or the 23rd.”

practice of Jones Lang LaSalle, which operates about 90 malls across the country, said traffic was up 10 percent to 12 percent across the country over the same weekend last year.

Most shoppers had about half their Christmas shopping left heading into the weekend, according to the National Retail Federation.

The Saturday before Christmas is known as “Super Saturday,” among retailers. Research company ShopperTrak expects it will have been the third-busiest shopping day this year.

Online shopping was strong, too. On Saturday, online retail spending rose 18 percent compared to the same day a year ago, according to IBM Coremetrics. (AP)

Police on Tuesday comb through brush searching for bodies in Cedar Beach, N.Y.

Questions Persist About N.Y. Bodies

Police: ‘Anything is possible’ in case of 4 found dead on island

Babylon, N.Y.

A week after police accidentally discovered the bodies of four women strewn over a quarter-mile stretch of marshy grasslands, overgrown shrubbery and sea grass on a barrier island, mere paces from an oceanfront parkway, investigators are vexed by the basic questions: Who are they, and how did they get there?

By week’s end, police brass appeared to concede they were stumped, even backing away from earlier notions that a serial killer may be responsible.

“We have no idea whatsoever whether we’re dealing with a serial killer,” Deputy Inspector William Neubauer said Friday. “Anything is possible at this point.”

Early suspicions were that the bodies may have been those of escorts who booked clients via Craigslist who disappeared on Long Island, across Great South Bay from Jones Island, where the remains were found.

Detectives believe the four women probably died elsewhere and were dumped just off the highway, but they remain open to any scenario.

Backstory

Police found the first body on Dec. 11 on Jones Island, N.Y., while investigating the disappearance of a New Jersey woman; the other three women were found two days later. The bodies were in various states of decomposition; one victim appeared to have been dead for 18 months or longer. An expanded highway search wrapped up Friday with police declaring it unlikely that other bodies would be found. (AP)

The bodies appear to have been dumped on the remote stretch of highway — about nine miles east of Jones Beach, in a place where the only reason for a driver to stop is a flat tire.

“I am at a loss as to who could have done it,” said Dorothy Warren, who lives in Oak Beach, about three miles from where the bodies were found. “I just hope it wasn’t one of my neighbors.”

Authorities have sought the expertise of the New York City medical examiner to help determine the women’s identities, a task they said could take up to a month.

The Suffolk County medical examiner said officials eventually hope to submit DNA samples from the victims to a national database of missing people. (AP)

Korea Strains Put World on Edge

South's live-fire drill plans spurs North to warn of 'catastrophe'

United Nations

World powers trying to defuse tensions between North and South Korea met in an emergency session of the U.N. Security Council on Sunday but disagreed over whether the North should be singled out for criticism over two deadly attacks this year that have helped send relations to their lowest point in decades.

China and Russia, the countries with the closest North Korea ties, have expressed concern about the South Korean military's plans to conduct one-day, live-fire drills by Tuesday on the same front-line island the North shelled last month as the South conducted a similar exercise. The United States supports South Korea, a staunch ally, and says any country has a right to train for self-defense.

The North warned of a "catastrophe" if South Korea goes ahead with the drills. The reclusive com-

South Korean marines patrol on Yeonpyeong Island, South Korea, on Sunday.

Backstory

Several bloody naval skirmishes occurred along the western sea border between the two Koreas in recent years, but last month's assault was the first by the North to target a civilian area since the end of the 1950-53 Korean War. The North does not recognize the U.N.-drawn sea border in the area. The North claims South Korea fired artillery toward its territorial waters before it unleashed shells on the island on Nov. 23, while the South says it launched shells southward, not toward North Korea, as part of routine exercises. (AP) munist government in Pyongyang said it would strike back harder than it did last month, when two South Korean marines and two civilians were killed on Yeonpyeong Island.

South Korea says the drills are routine, defensive in nature and should not be considered threatening.

Russia called for the Security Council meeting, and Moscow wants the U.N.'s most powerful body to adopt a statement calling on North Korea and South Korea "to exercise maximum restraint" and urging immediate diplomatic efforts to reduce tensions.

Russia and China — which are permanent members of the 15-nation council along with the U.S., Britain and France — just want a statement to urge calm and appoint an envoy, but most council members view that as unfairly equating the actions of the two Koreas, said a council diplomat.

China, the North's key ally, has said it is "unambiguously opposed" to any acts that could worsen already high tensions.

UN: Ivory Coast's Abductions Grow

'Massive violations' of human rights on the rise since election

Abidjan, Ivory Coast

The United Nations said Sunday it has received hundreds of reports of people being abducted from their homes at night by armed assailants in military uniform and that there is growing evidence of "massive violations of human rights" since Ivory Coast's disputed election.

The statement from the U.N. High Commissioner for Human Rights came a day after the U.N. said it would remain in Ivory Coast despite demands from the man refusing to give up the presidency that thousands of peacekeepers get out of the West African country.

Navi Pillay, the top U.N. human rights official, said Sunday that more than 50 people have been killed over the past three days in

Meanwhile ...

The State Department ordered most of its personnel Sunday to leave Ivory Coast because of what officials are calling a deteriorating political and security situation and growing anti-Western sentiment. The order exempts only the State Department's emergency personnel. U.S. officials are also warning American citizens to avoid travel to the nation until further notice. (AP)

Ivory Coast; previous estimates were that up to 30 people had died in the violence.

International pressure is mounting for Laurent Gbagbo to concede defeat to opposition leader Alassane Ouattara, whose victory has been recognized by the United Nations, the United States, former colonizer France and the African Union.

The EU was giving Gbagbo until Sunday to concede defeat. (AP)

Soul Train

To 33-year-old physician Adam Possner, right, the daily trip from Twinbrook to Foggy Bottom (and back) isn't just a commute; it's poetry in motion. The simple process of walking a block, boarding a train, switching lines and then arriving at work has enchanted Possner, who moved here from Baltimore five months ago.

"I love the Metro," declares the Louisville, Ky., native, who's never before been able to depend on public transportation.

Possner is so impressed with the system he immortalized it in an ode. "Subway Religion" is not his first stab at poetry, but it's a departure from Possner's other works, which are typically inspired by his day job and have appeared in various medical journals. "This was something that just came to me," he says.

From his first trip, Possner was enraptured by the soaring, cathedral-like interiors of D.C.'s Metro stations. Passengers' behavior reinforced this sense of the sacred.

Subway Religion

By Adam Possner

Under a high vaulted ceiling in somber light
hundreds of people wait
as if outside St. Peter's on Christmas night.

Of every race and creed
rich and poor
they await the appearance of that sacred door.

Finally, with a burst of wind and noise
the time arrives.

"Doors opening"
an invisible female usher chimes.

From the dark open space
the crowd quickly moves into a fluorescent sanctuary with oily windows and vinyl pews.

They settle into seats or move to the center of the room.

15 seconds later — "Doors closing"
and the service resumes.

The ritual is essentially the same seven days a week
a conductor speaks in tongues amid a moving cacophony.

Meanwhile, swaying and bobbing each congregant does his or her own thing usually sleeping or reading or listening to music or texting.

The doctrine is simple easy for anyone to follow pass through the collection gate and foreswear anything you can swallow.

Welcome to the Subway Religion where more than peace or love what matters most in life is getting to that place up above.

Fight Brews for D.C. Food Vendors

Adams Morgan store owners say market is taking away business

Washington

Armando Melgarez lends a broom, a bathroom or a soccer score to the outdoor food vendors who gather three days a week steps from his Salvadorean/Mexican restaurant in Adams Morgan. He feels a kinship with the vendors, some of whom come from the same part of El Salvador where Melgarez was raised. But they are also his competition.

Every weekend in Adams Morgan, a dozen Latino vendors sell food at Unity Park.

ASTRID RECKENFELT

"I don't like to tell them I'm not happy, because I feel like they are part of the family," Melgarez said. "On the other hand, we're losing a lot of business."

Melgarez, who owns Combinacion on Columbia Road, is one of several Adams Morgan businessmen protesting a two-year-old market at the intersection of Columbia Road, and Euclid and Champlain streets. To restaurateurs, their objections are a matter of fairness.

Bryan Weaver, one of the ANC commissioners for the area, said the market adds character to the community and is reminiscent of the vendors on Columbia Road from the 1970s and 1980s. Weaver suggested incorporating local restaurants and adding other types of vendors, such as butchers or florists, to attract more foot traffic for all local businesses.

Backstory

"I don't think this has to be an adversarial relationship," Weaver said. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

A Cautious Approach

With historic repeal of 'don't ask' passed, military mulls how to implement policy

Washington

The debate over gays in the military has been settled with a historic decision to allow them to serve openly, but big questions lie ahead about how and when the change will take place, how troops will accept it and whether it will hamper the U.S. military effort in Afghanistan and Iraq.

President Obama is expected to sign into law this week the legislation that passed the Senate on Saturday, an act some believe will carry social implications as profound as President Harry S. Truman's 1948 executive order on racial equality in the military.

The new law probably won't go into practice for months. Obama and his top advisers must first certify that repealing the 1993 ban on gays' serving openly will not damage U.S. troops' ability to fight. That ban, known as "don't ask, don't tell," has allowed gays to serve, but only if they kept quiet about their sexual orientation. In the meantime, the restrictions will remain on the books, although it's unclear how fully they will be enforced.

The repeal vote by Congress was a political victory for Obama, who campaigned on ending the ban. Even though opponents have made clear they will continue to argue against the change, Peter Mansoor, a retired Army colonel who commanded a brigade in Iraq, said Sunday he believes the military will accept its new orders. "Pretty much all the heated discussion is over, and now it's a matter of the more mundane aspects of implementing the law," Mansoor said.

That begins, under terms of the legislation, with Obama's certification to Congress — for which there's no deadline. On Saturday, Defense Secretary Robert Gates said he will begin the certification process immediately. But a change in policy won't come until after consultation with military service chiefs and combatant commanders, he said.

Gates has supported Obama's push to repeal the ban, but stressed a go-slow

The History

1950 President Harry S. Truman signs the Uniform Code of Military Justice, setting up discharge rules for gay service members.

1982 President Ronald Reagan issues a defense directive saying that "homosexuality is incompatible with military service."

1993 President Clinton introduces a compromise — "don't Ask, don't Tell" — on his pledge to end the ban on gays in the military.

2006 The Supreme Court rules unanimously that the federal government can withhold funding to force universities to accept military recruiters in violation of university non-discrimination policies, essentially upholding "don't ask, don't tell."

2010 In the matter of three days, both houses of a lame-duck Congress pass a repeal of "don't ask, don't tell."

THE REPEAL EFFORT: Lt. Dan Choi, who was discharged from the Army under "don't ask, don't tell" and has championed efforts to end the ban, is arrested after protesting for gay rights at the White House this year.

Growing Support

44%

The portion of Americans in May 1993 who believed gays who disclosed their sexual orientation should be allowed to serve in the military.

77%

The portion of Americans who think so now, according to a Washington Post-ABC News poll released this month.

approach. "Successful implementation will depend upon strong leadership, a clear message and proactive education throughout the force," Gates said.

Gay rights activists say the complications and uncertainties are being overblown.

"Only three steps are needed to assure a smooth and quick transition to open gay service," said Aaron Belkin, director of the Palm Center, a research institute at the University of California, Santa Barbara. They are an immediate executive order from Obama suspending all discharges of gay service members; a few weeks to put new regulations in place; and then immediate certification to Congress that the new law will work.

There remains, however, doubt among some that the way ahead will be smooth.

Richard Myers, a former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told CNN's "State of the Union" that the degree of difficulty in the immediate future is hard to predict. "But in the long run I think we can" make the change without hurting military effectiveness.

Bryan Taylor of Prattville, Ala., who served four years on active duty and in November was elected to the Alabama Senate, isn't as sure. "I think this is going to pose a lot of challenges for the military," Taylor said. When a soldier openly declares he is gay, "it does create an unnecessary distraction." ROBERT BURNS (AP)

4 Steps Before Repeal

1st

The ban on gays in the military will not be formally lifted until after President Obama and top military leaders report to Congress that they have reviewed the findings of the Pentagon review about the ban, released last month, and that the Defense Department has drafted policies and regulations to stop enforcing "don't ask, don't tell."

2nd

After the finding, lawmakers will be able to hold hearings for two months to review the Pentagon's policies and procedures for accepting openly gay troops, according to congressional aides.

3rd

Close military observers say that the ease of ending the ban will vary widely among the military branches and that the Pentagon could stagger implementation of the change.

4th

Aaron Belkin, director of the Palm Center—a research institute in California—expects the Pentagon to say that it needs up to a year for training and education to prepare troops for the change. (TWP/AP)

Trim Your Monster of a Mortgage

Refinancing and tax know-how may cut that big monthly bill

New York

Don't let a big debt run your life. There are ways to trim your monthly costs that will move you closer to a mortgage-free retirement.

Paying early

Make one extra payment every year and apply the extra cash toward principal.

"That will cut about eight years off your 30-year fixed loan," said Pava Leyrer, president of Heritage National Mortgage in Michigan.

There are several ways to do this. You can make a full extra payment all at once. Leyrer suggests using your tax refund. Still, it may be easier to pay throughout the year. For example, if your monthly payment is $1,200, pay $100 each month. Another option: Some banks will deduct half the mortgage payment from your account every two weeks, which adds up to 13 payments a year.

Seek a lower rate

You're probably aware that mortgage rates have been at their lowest level in decades. What does that mean for you as a homeowner? You could possibly shave hundreds of dollars off your monthly payment.

The rule of thumb is that refinancing often makes financial sense if you can secure a rate that's 1 percentage point or more lower than your current loan. You will pay off the closing costs with the savings within a couple of years and realize greater savings on interest over the life of the loan.

For homeowners looking to increase their home's value through improvements or repairs, opt for an FHA 203K loan for expenses up to $35,000.

Be tax savvy

One of the perks of being a homeowner is that mortgage interest payments are tax-deductible. To increase your deduction, make your January payment before Dec. 31 of the previous year. That will also add up to 13 payments for the year, and the bigger tax refund can be used to get ahead. JANNA HERRON (AP)

Debit Card Rewards' Final Days?

New York

A proposed cap on the fees that banks charge for debit card transactions would substantially reduce the cost for businesses. But it's started a death watch for debit card rewards and renewed predictions that free checking is done for.

The Federal Reserve's proposal to cap these fees, at 12 cents per transaction, would enable retailers to pass on annual savings of $10 billion to $13 billion to consumers. But banks and card networks maintain that retailers will pocket the savings. This would leave consumers to bear the brunt of the new law through higher costs for banking and reduced rewards programs.

In releasing its proposal Thursday, Fed staff said they found the cost to banks for processing is between 7 cents and 12 cents per transaction. Yet every time a customer swipes a debit card, the average fee is 44 cents. (AP)

At Your Service: The personal touch is making a comeback. That old-fashioned habit of stopping in at your local bank branch is being encouraged again as the banking industry looks to put the spark back in service. Citi offers free Wi-Fi at its flagship location in New York City's Union Square neighborhood, Bank of America's personal bankers are being trained to spend more time with customers, and Chase is adding 400 locations in the next two years. # Grossman Comes Up Just Short

New Redskins QB leads late rally only to see Cowboys win

Cowboys	10	10	10	3	33
Redskins	0	7	7	16	30

Directed by new starting quarterback Rex Grossman, the Washington Redskins showed significant improvement on offense but continued their season-ending slide Sunday in a 33-30 loss to the Dallas Cowboys at Cowboys Stadium.

Grossman impressed in his first game since supplanting benched six-time Pro Bowler Donovan McNabb, passing for 322 yards, matching a career high with four touchdown passes and helping the Redskins tie the score at 30 in the fourth quarter after they trailed by as many as 20 points in the third.

But quarterback Jon Kitna led the Cowboys into field goal range, and placekicker David Buehler made a 39-yarder with 50 seconds remaining to give Dallas the victory.

After a touchback on the kickoff, Washington started on its 20-yard line with 50 seconds remaining. Cowboys cornerback Terence Newman intercepted Grossman's pass to end the game, and the Redskins (5-9) lost their fourth straight and five of their last six. They dropped into a last-place tie with the Cowboys (5-9) in the NFC East.

Grossman delivered a big performance in his first start since Nov. 9, 2008, when he led the Chicago Bears against the Tennes-

Redskins quarterback Rex Grossman (8) passes in the fourth. He finished 25-43 passing with four TDs and two INTs in the loss.

Report Card

BEST CALL: After converting one two-point conversion, the Redskins dialed up another with an deceptive play-action pass to Mike Sellers in the fourth quarter to tie the game.

WORST CALL: The Redskins ran the ball only 14 times and relied on a heavy diet of screens and wheel routes that were ineffective.

BEST ADJUSTMENT: For the second-straight game, it took nearly three quarters for Chris Cooley to get his hands on the ball, but when he did, he was integral to the rally.

C The QB switch didn't totally blow up in Shanahan's face but did come back to bite him.

Orakpo May Be Done

Redskins linebacker Brian Orakpo is concerned he could miss the final two games of the season after suffering groin and hamstring injuries while in pass coverage in the second quarter. As the Cowboys were driving for a touchdown that would put them up 20-7, Orakpo tackled Felix Jones after a 32-yard gain but said he instantly knew something was wrong. "It's a bad situation," Orakpo said. (THE WASHINGTON POST) see Titans.

The Redskins scored at least 30 points in a game for the first time since Dec. 13 of last season against the Oakland Raiders — a span of 16 games. Wide receiver Santana Moss had 72 yards receiving and two touchdowns — his first multiple-touchdown performance since Oct. 1, 2006.

On three drives spanning the third and fourth quarters, Grossman led the Redskins to three-straight touchdowns. Each culminated with touchdown passes — two to Moss and one to tight end Chris Cooley, who had five catches for 62 yards. Grossman also completed consecutive two-point conversion passes to Cooley and Mike Sellers to help Washington tie the score at 30 with 7 minutes, 37 seconds to play in the fourth quarter.

Kitna, the Cowboys' quarterback, was sharp in the first two quarters. He had a 117.8 passer rating while passing for 222 yards and two touchdowns with no interceptions in the first half, and finished the day with 305 yards passing. (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Sunday Recap

WEEK 15

Top Dogs

Ray Rice, RB, Ravens

Rice powered the Ravens' running game with 153 yards and a touchdown in Baltimore's 30-24 win over Super Bowl champion New Orleans. He also grabbed five receptions for 80 yards — tied for the game-high — and scored a TD in the air.

Michael Vick, QB, Eagles

The MVP candidate took full advantage of his duel-threat abilities Sunday, throwing for 242 yards and a touchdown, and running for 130 yards and another score as the Eagles rallied to defeat the Giants, 38-31.

Newsmakers

Peyton Manning QB, Colts

Manning's interception woes are officially over, as he avoided the turnover bug for a second-straight game while throwing for 229 yards and two touchdowns in the Colts' 34-24 win over the Jaguars.

Injuries

Terrell Owens, WR, Bengals Owens reinjured his left knee in Cincy's win Sunday.

Austin Collie, WR, Colts Collie suffered a concussion after scoring two TDs.

Nate Allen, S, Eagles Allen suffered a serious right knee injury in the first half Sunday.

25

The number of NFL players to have rushed for 10,000 yards in their career. Kansas City's Thomas Jones joined the list in the Chiefs' 27-13 win on Sunday.

56,542

The number of fans who attended "the battle of Ohio" between the Browns and Bengals. The Bengals snapped their 10-game losing skid in front of the sparse crowd.

Jackson, Eagles Stun the Giants

Pro Football

Just call it the great escape. Michael Vick engineered it. DeSean Jackson capped it. And the Philadelphia Eagles have control of the NFC East firmly in their hands because of it.

Jackson scored on a 65-yard punt return on the final play of the game, and the Eagles scored 28 points in the final 7:28 to stun the New York Giants 38-31 and take over first place in the NFC East.

Emphasizing his candidacy for the MVP award, Vick threw for two touchdowns and ran for another in the incredible late rally that all but clinched the division for the Eagles (10-4) and left Giants coach Tom Coughlin so angry he threw his notes as Jackson backed into the end zone. Philadelphia only needs to win one of its final two games or have New York lose one of its two to win the NFC East. (AP)

Arenas Relishes Chance at Fresh Start

Ex-Wizards guard calls trade to Magic 'a new beginning'

Pro Basketball

Gilbert Arenas was so eager to leave Washington, he didn't even pack his bags.

After he found out his trade to the Magic was official, he ended his workout, grabbed a pair of shoes, said his goodbyes and caught the first flight to Orlando.

The chance to start over had finally arrived. "This is a new beginning for me," Arenas said Saturday night. "This is a true new beginning. Changing my number was a new beginning, but this is a real new beginning with a new city, new people and new team, and I get to start fresh."

The Magic only hopes he leaves all his problems behind. Arenas was suspended 50 games last season for bringing a gun into Washington's locker room. He also faked an injury to sit out a preseason game this year, and his off-the-cuff remarks were a distraction for a team now built around top pick John Wall.

Arenas is still due about $60 million over four years, one of the biggest reasons — along with recurring knee problems that limited him to 47 games the previous three seasons — many teams also stayed clear. But the Magic was able to unload another ballooning contract in Rashard Lewis, who has two more years after this season remaining on a $118 million, six-year deal.

Arenas has showed signs this season that he can be close to what he once was when healthy. The 28-year-old has averaged 17.3 points and 5.6 assists, scoring a season-high 31 points against the Magic on Nov. 27. "I had to prove a point," he said, laughing. (AP)

The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC), the federal government's insurance program for pension benefits, is taking steps to assume responsibility for your pension plan. This means the PBGC will become your plan's trustee. The PBGC will pay you the benefits you earned, up to limits set by law.

The PBGC is taking this action because your plan meets the criteria for termination under federal pension law. In general, this means that the plan doesn't have enough money to pay all the promised benefits and your employer is financially unable to keep up the plan. The plan will terminate as of December 20, 2010. As of that date, you will not earn any further benefits from the plan.

When the PBGC becomes trustee of your plan, we will notify you by letter. If you are retired, we will continue to pay your benefit without interruption. If you are not yet retired, we will pay your guaranteed benefit when you become eligible. Until the PBGC becomes trustee, Friendship House Association, Inc. remains responsible for paying plan benefits.

The PBGC currently pays benefits to more than 800,000 individuals in more than 4,000 pension plans it has assumed. The PBGC pays guaranteed benefits up to the maximum amount allowed by law. The maximum annual guarantee in your plan is $54,000 for a 65-year-old. Maximum guarantees are lower for those who retire at younger ages or elect survivor benefits. Benefit increases made within five years of the plan's termination are not fully guaranteed.

Terps Expected to Target Leach

Terps Football

Maryland is expected to try to hire former Texas Tech coach Mike Leach as head football coach once the school announces Ralph Friedgen's departure after a 10-year tenure, according to three sources familiar with the situation.

The announcement on Friedgen, who led Maryland to a combined 31 wins his first three seasons and seven bowl games, is expected early this week as the school negotiates a buyout with the coach. The Web site OrangeBloods.com, which covers the University of Texas and the Big 12, reported Saturday night that Leach would be Maryland's next head football coach, according to a "key Big 12 source."

There is mutual interest for Leach and Maryland, according to three sources, one of whom is close to Leach and two of whom are close to Maryland. Leach is said to be very interested in the job. He has a strong relationship with Kevin Plank, a former Maryland football player who sits on the school's board of trustees and whose apparel company, Under Armour, is the outfitter for the school's athletic teams. ## Booze Clues

Nutmeg Domination

Most winter holiday foods are notoriously awful. Fruitcake? Nobody actually likes it. And what on Earth is figgy pudding? It sounds revolting.

But I'll never understand the people who dislike eggnog. It's frothy and sweet, and you can put alcohol in it. Show me the part of that equation that's unappealing. So, every winter I search out eggnog to match my mother's get-a-train-tipsy recipe, and this year my favorite is Poste Brasserie's (555 8th St. NW) brandy- and rum-spiked concoction.

Poste's hot cocktail menu includes four new drinks — including the Hazel-nut Hot Toddy, which uses rum spiced with Oregon's Rogue Ale. My reaction to infusions is generally "Stop putting things in my bourbon," but rum is a good liquor for new flavors, and anything to do with Rogue is usually guaranteed to make you happy. If that doesn't entice you, try the hot buttered rum, which includes house-made butter and cachaca (a liquor made from fermented sugarcane).

Xmas Alternatives

The Gefilte Fish Gala (Muse Lounge, 717 6th St. NW; 202-686-5990; gefiltefishgala.net) is meant to give those of us who don't celebrate Christmas a chance to get crazy on Dec. 25. Who needs a stocking when there are $5 rail drinks and $3 beers before 10 p.m., plus several floors of DJs and dancing? The $5 donation benefits Susan G. Komen for the Cure. No word on whether any gefilte fish will actually be consumed.

Auditory Triumphs

In the world of music, 2010 seemed to be the year of the underdog. There was Arcade Fire, which hit Billboard No. 1 on an indie label. Taylor Swift bested seasoned vets to become the only artist this year to sell more than a million albums in one week. Even Kanye West probably felt like David, facing a Goliath-sized amount of bad press. All of those come-from-behind tales made for a rewarding year. (EXPRESS STAFF)

BEST OF 2010

"My Beautiful Dark Twisted Fantasy"

by Kanye West

After self-imposed exile in Hawaii and a much-needed ego check, West surfaced with an unapologetic, overwhelming and star-studded opus. "Fantasy" pushes limits and could convert any hater into Yeezy's biggest fan. TRACKS TO DOWNLOAD: "MONSTER," "DARK FANTASY"

"The Suburbs"

by Arcade Fire

No band better captures the delights and uncertainties of youth than Arcade Fire. # Lingering 'Somewhere'

Sofia Coppola's new film is a portrait of a man at a crossroads

Film Preview

In just four films — two original and two adaptations — filmmaker Sofia Coppola has proved herself one of the most fascinating American auteurs working today.

She makes pensive, intimate portraits in which her protagonists often feel growing pains while transitioning into a new stage in their isolated, privileged lives. Coppola's strong sense of "cool" has propelled her far from Francis Ford Coppola's paternal shadow.

For her latest film, "Somewhere" (out Dec. 22), Coppola became the first American woman to win the Golden Lion Award for best picture at the Venice Film Festival. In the movie, Hollywood star Johnny Marco (Stephen Dorff) is going nowhere in style — driving his Ferrari, ordering strippers like room service, and partying — when his 11-year-old daughter (Elle Fanning), who is fast becoming a woman, reappears in his life.

"I thought about how Johnny is at that age in this moment where he can either be a guy with a family or the old guy at the nightclub," Coppola says. "It wouldn't be interesting to do a story about someone where they're at a point where everything's smooth sailing."

Shot with a small crew almost entirely at the Chateau Marmont in Hollywood, "Somewhere" is her most stark and minimalist film to date, sharply contrasting with her previous film, "Marie Antoinette." Inspired by the French New Wave films of Godard and Truffaut, "Somewhere" includes a lot of long, lingering takes of her leading man that might put off an audience with a shorter attention span.

"It was really enjoyable in a way that making a student film can be, where everyone is just kind of helping out and it was small enough that we could have a familiar atmosphere," Coppola says. "It's always scary making a movie, putting your heart in something. I was nervous the pace would come off as boring or indulgent. It's always a balance of how to keep people engaged but still keep the type of style that you want. CASSIE CARPENTER (BACK STAGE)

Jackie O's Ambition

Two authors examine the former first lady's work as a book editor

Nonfiction

When most of us think of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, we remember the perfectly coifed first lady in a stylish shift, a string of pearls and a pillbox hat. Or Jackie O, the rich widow in huge sunglasses that shielded her from the world.

We probably don't think of a middle-aged working woman making her own photocopies, waiting in line to speak to the boss or sitting cross-legged on the floor, arranging photos and puffing on cigarettes.

Yet this was Jackie's third act — the Jackie who joined the work force in her mid-40s and spent nearly two decades as a book editor. By all accounts, it was one of the most satisfying periods of her life.

"She didn't do this just to have a job," says Bruce Tracy, a former colleague at the Doubleday publishing house. "She loved this. This is what she was passionate about."

Two new books examine this little-known part of Jackie's life, giving readers a new slant on a woman who has fascinated Americans like no other person in our history.

"People think about Jackie's clothes, about her marriages, maybe her redecorating the White House," says historian William Kuhn, author of "Reading Jackie: Her Autobiography in Books" ($28, Nan A. Talese). "But her editorial career was longer than her two marriages combined. It says more about who she was as a person, because this is something she After Aristotle Onassis' death, Jackie joined Viking as a book editor. She was 46.

"Her editorial career was longer than her two marriages combined. It says more about who she was as a person, because this is something she actually chose to do."

actually chose to do."

Jackie was 46 when she was hired by Viking Press, not long after the 1975 death of Aristotle Onassis. Her early efforts — she spent only two years there, before moving to Doubleday — were a learning process. But her productivity skyrocketed as the years went on. "She amassed a list of books that publishing professionals are in awe of today," Kuhn says.

Her love of dance led to the bestseller "Dancing on My Grave," by ballerina Gelsey Kirkland and her husband, author Greg Lawrence. Working with her on the book, an account of Kirkland's descent into drug addiction, was "a humbling experience," says Lawrence, who next month comes out with "Jackie as Editor: The Literary Life of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis" ($26, Thomas Dunne).

Lawrence says that one of the most revealing anecdotes he's ever heard about Jackie came from a friend, editor Joe Armstrong, who visited her in Martha's Vineyard less than a year before she died.

"I remember in her living room she had all these books," Armstrong told Lawrence.

"She said, 'These are my other best friends.'" JOCELYN NOVECK (AP)

Horoscope

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

You're keeping up with current trends, but there may be something dissatisfying about doing what everyone else is doing.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) What is legal and what is right are two different things; take care that your actions are respectful of both conventions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may find yourself working hard to catch up to someone who was lucky enough to get an early start. You have what it takes to compete.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) As quiet as you are, you know how to say a great deal with a mere gesture or the subtlest action. Others are waiting for your input.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's a good day to try something that may have been quite daunting in the recent past. You have little to lose and everything to gain.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You never know where your inspiration will come from, and it's likely to arrive when you least expect it and most need it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A family situation benefits from your input, though you may have to contradict what a loved one has been saying. You can get results.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) The envy you feel of those who are doing what you want to be doing is likely to wane as you discover an important new creative outlet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're in search of something that can be the centerpiece of your life — at least for the time being. Maybe it's really a someone.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It'll take more than money to solve a current problem; patience allows you to think about things in a way that can open a few doors.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll want to leave no stone unturned as you seek that which you feel will bring you closer to home in a more meaningful way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You may not understand everything that is said to you, but you'll surely appreciate that many want to communicate with you.
